

Here Lies the Rainbow for Wishful Thinkers

Silas W.H.F. / 2024.02.18

Photo taken at Hong Kong Zoological and Botanical Gardens, 2024

That one leaf has fallen off.
Here it withers with the last tear in its life.

The wanderer passes by.
It would be the far future,
And only the leaf knows:
All of that image is just a dream.

Wishes faded away.
Oh, how he stood there
As the wind's blowing through –
Chilling nights and numbed nerves,
With stories left behind, ended in vain.

/To my dearest self, four years in the past.